Exclusive Executive Dinner by invitation only

Data and Analytics

Leadership & Vision

Data and analytics leaders now come from all parts of the business. Data and analytics programs are no longer being led exclusively by IT, but are created by and for other business leaders. The integrated, connected, real-time nature of digital business requires collaboration between historically independent organizational units, and data and analytics programs are at the center of it all. To realize your digital business vision and for cross-organizational collaboration to happen, business and IT must work together on vision, strategy, roles and metrics.
